

SOUTHBURY MAKERS SPOTLIGHT

Sherie Roberts, mixed media artist

For longtime Southbury artist Sherie Roberts, the call to create started during the early days of the Covid-19 Pandemic.

"What began for me in early 2020 as an enjoyable spiritual practice became my core coping mechanism for helping my spiritual self get through the Pandemic," says Roberts. "Now I am about to launch a new creative space "The Dove Nest" in my church so that I can inspire and share this way to be in a joyous flow with the divine spirit as an activity with others in my community."

Roberts, a lay leader at the Newtown Congregational Church and certified Spiritual Director, uses art to express her feelings on a particular topic, current event, or relationship rather than a specific technique or subject matter. "I consider myself as a spiritual entrepreneur who endeavors to discover and share life within my community as a 'human being', not just a 'human doing'." says Roberts, continuing, "My new vocation celebrates using my life energies to share my spiritual gifts with others and is called "SherieSharing Expressive Art".

Roberts utilizes a wide range of materials in her collages, including acrylic paints, embellishments like clay faces and flowers, cabochons, vintage buttons and recycled packaging from household products, greeting cards, and stickers,

For more information about this month's maker, or if you are interested in being featured in an upcoming issue of the Southbury Makers Spotlight, contact us at edcsouthburymakers@gmail.com.

WHERE TO FIND THEM

 planetariumom@gmail.com

 @planetariumom

 (203) 768-4647